GEORGE HENRY AND MARGARET SULSER BUNNELL

George Henry Bunnell, son of David Edwin Bunnell and Sallie Heller Conrad.

Born December 21, 1837, in Brownstown, Wayne County, Michigan. Married Margaret Sulser, October 11, 1867. Died April 1, 1908, Midway.

Margaret Sulser, daughter of Casper Sulser and Kathryn Stiedler Sulser. Born September 5, 1851, in Meiringen, Canton Bern, Switzerland. Died May 15, 1923, Salt Lake City, Utah. Buried in Midway.

George Henry Bunnell was the youngest son of David Edwin and Sallie Heller Conrad Bunnell. The family joined the exodus of Saints, experiencing mob persecutions and burnings. Owning a wagon and yoke of oxen, they started westward with a company of Saints under James C. Snow, David Edwin Bunnell, himself a captain of ten. They arrived in Salt Lake October 5, 1852. The family was directed to assist in the settlement of Provo.

Indian troubles were increasing, and in 1853 George Henry Bunnell was mustered into service to do the regular work of guarding and assisting in the care of the town.

In 1857, when Johnston's Army came to Utah, he was again mustered into service to serve in Echo Canyon. Later he was ordered to Salt Lake City and was honorably discharged. He also served with thirty other men to bring in a Handcart Company that was snowbound in Echo Canyon.

George Henry Bunnell settled on a farm in Center Creek, Wasatch County, in 1862.

In 1866 the Indian troubles commenced again, and he was ordered to move from the farm into Heber City and helped in building up that town. The Indians stole two yoke of his oxen in connection with many others, and he with a party of men were sent out to follow the Indians and try to recover the stolen cattle. The snow became so deep that the men were forced to return without their oxen. For three months he was on duty eight days and off duty eight days guarding and caring for the balance of the stock that were not stolen.

In 1867 he went to Salt Lake and worked for Squire Daniel H. Wells, logging in Big Cottonwood Canyon. The same year he became acquainted with Margaret Sulser, who was living with Bishop Cahoon's family.

Margaret Sulser, with her parents, arrived in the United States in 1851 and became pioneers of the Joseph W. Young Company arriving in Salt Lake September 22, 1861.

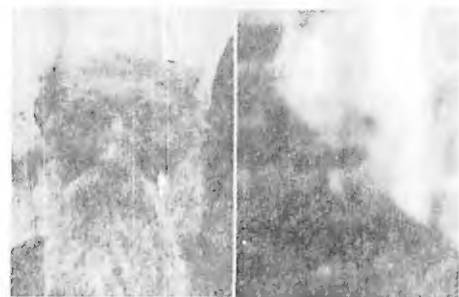

George Henry Bunnell and Margaret Sulser were married October 11, 1867, by Angus M. Cannon. In 1869, they moved to Midway, Wasatch County, with their one child, Margaret Eve. The firstborn, Sallie Heller, died at the age of two weeks from the effects of measles. Here in Midway a permanent home was established. Seven more children were born here, and a tenth was adopted.
